1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 15-23, 25-29, 31, and 32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent No. 6,340,053 to Wu et al, newly cited. Wu et al discloses the claimed heat exchanger comprising a plurality of stacked plates. The plates have separate internal flow channels for first and second fluids. The recitation of the heat exchanger being a motor vehicle condenser with the refrigerating fluid as one of the fluids used is considered to be a mere statement of intended use which is not supported by the claimed structure. Furthermore, the heat exchanger of Wu et al is capable of being used as a condenser in a refrigeration system.

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 24 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wu et al in view of U.S. Patent No. 5,628,206 to Baba. Wu et al discloses the claimed invention except for the bottle built between the first and second series of plates. Baba teaches a condenser comprising a series of stacked plates and a bottle or reservoir 33 adjacent the plates. Thus, it would be obvious to provide Wu et al with a bottle or reservoir, in view of Baba, for the purpose of providing an expansion container for the heat exchanger. The location of the bottle or reservoir with respect to the plates is considered to be a matter of obvious choice to one of ordinary skill in the art. No criticality or unexpected results are seen or have been disclosed for the claimed location of the bottle or reservoir. Furthermore, one of ordinary skill in the art would have expected Applicant's invention to work equally as well as with the device of Baba.

5. Claim 30 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wu et al. Wu et al discloses the claimed invention except for the compressor and evaporator. The compressor, condenser, and evaporator are extremely well known components of a refrigeration system, and thus to use a refrigeration system incorporating the heat exchanger of Wu et al as the condenser would be an obvious expedient to one of ordinary skill in the refrigeration art.

6. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 15-29 have been considered but are moot in view of the new grounds of rejection.
